Monash Health - amazing things are happening here
Exceptional care, outstanding outcomes

Monash Doctors are committed to the highest standards of excellence in patient care. The Rheumatology Unit is looking for positive, committed and inspiring registrars to join a thriving team dedicated to achieving the best.

You will be working in the largest Rheumatology Unit in Australia, with one of the most successful research units in the country embedded within it. At Monash, our research excellence is translated into exceptional care for our patients. We value your passion and will facilitate your professional growth and development by providing you a well-supported environment. Our unit fosters an innovative, respectful and positive team-based culture. You will enhance your learning experiences in a setting which encourages innovation, personal growth and evidence-based care. The position is accredited for advanced training in Rheumatology by the RACP.

These positions begin on 5 February 2018 for 12 months.
